THE Hon, Champ Clark has just completed the delivery of the first speeches before the people of Audrain County. The first installment consisted of twelve good old fashtoned Democratic stump speeches, each one two hours long. He has just crossed the line into gallant little Ralls, where he will make eight speeches, returning to Audrain to finish up his campaign in this county by speaking at Farber and Vandalia. Mr. Clark has certainly deserved well of the people of this ditrict and county, if for nothing more to tell it to you. Kindest regards than the vigorous campaign he has made under trying circumstances. He has made two long speeches daily since the opening of the campaign six weeks ago; he will keep this up until the day of the election. No other man in Missouri, or in the Mississippi valley, has put in as many hours speaking as the member from the Ninth District. He has not been led away from his own people by flattering invitations from other States or other portions of this State. He has preferred speaking in vacant store rooms, school houses and tents to the honest farmers of the district, of which he is so proud, to appearing before the vast audiences of cities that would be glad to honor him as their guest. The State Democratic Committee has received five times as many calls for Champ Clark as speaker than for any other Last week he turned over to the State Committee nearly ing an income of over $3,500 a year. four score invitations from other States, which he desired the com mittee should answer. Among these was one to deliver six speeches in William L. Wilson's district, where the eyes of the whole country would have been upon him. Where he the law requiring every man whose could aid the campaign in the State income is within $500 of the by going outside his own district, amount, to file a sworn statement of and at the same time not neglect his exact income. The statement the Ninth, he has done so, and has always been met with large crowds and much enthusiasm. When the day of the election comes he will have made 100 speeches in this Congressional district. Mr. Clark is a firm believer in bard work, and if there be any virtue in it, his majority this

Men With $4,000 Will Soon Have to Pay Tribute Under the New Law.

The Collector of Revenue is beginning to look around with an eye to locating those who have an income of over $4,000 and are therefore subject to the income tax.

As yet no instructions have been received from the Treasury department at Washington and consequently it has not been thought necessary to pay any attention to this part of the new tariff law for the present. Instructions are expected about January 1, when, under the law, it will become the duty of the collector of internal revenue to inquire into the financial condition of every man who is suspected of hav-
